Dear [redacted] (S)

ALL INFORMATION CONTAINED HEREIN IS UNCLASSIFIED EXCEPT WHERE SHOWN OTHERWISE.

After returning from a trip abroad, I learned with regret of your decision to retire. I realize this was not easy, but after a long and distinguished career such as yours, retirement is certainly deserved.

On behalf of your many friends and associates in the FBI, I would like to express our appreciation for your assistance to the Bureau over the years. You have worked closely with us involving numerous matters of mutual interest in your key positions within CIA. Your positive attitude and support for the Bureau have contributed to the accomplishment of our mission and have served to strengthen the relationship between our agencies.

My colleagues join me in conveying congratulations and in wishing you and your family much happiness and prosperity in the years ahead.

Sincerely,

THE CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY (CIA) DRAFT BILL,
"INTELLIGENCE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 1987

INFORMATION MEMORANDUM

C.I.A.

This memorandum is in response to your legislative report assignment dated January 30, 1986 requesting our views on the CIA Draft Bill, "Intelligence Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1986."

We have reviewed the CIA draft bill which the Agency has submitted to the Office of Management and Budget for administrative clearance prior to its submission to Congress. Some of the titles are routine in nature and others contain provisions which have been included in previous authorization bills. Title VI contains a variety of provisions designed to improve the counterintelligence capabilities of the FBI. We support these provisions with the following exceptions.

Proposed Section 603 entitled "Access to Telephone Toll Records" would amend Chapter 33 of Title 28 by adding a new Section 538. Subsection b of Title 28, United States Code, Section 538 would provide that the FBI may, at the request of other agencies within the intelligence community, obtain telephone record information when the information is "relevant to the intelligence responsibility of such agency." This subsection, if enacted, will become a burden on the FBI, as we could receive numerous requests from other Intelligence Community agencies. Additionally, the operative language, that these requests merely be "relevant to the intelligence responsibility of such agency" would appear to permit significant latitude to the requesting agency. This provision, in addition to being burdensome, may jeopardize the FBI's obtaining the requested authority from Congress.

The Attorney General Guidelines for FBI Foreign Intelligence Collection and Foreign Counterintelligence Investigations (FCIG) authorize requests for telephone toll records only in certain investigations. The FCIG standards appear to be significantly more stringent than the above "relevancy" test for other requesting agencies. Therefore we have serious reservations about processing toll record requests for other agencies within the Intelligence Community based on this tenuous standard.

Title IX of the CIA's proposed bill entitled "Unauthorized Disclosure of Classified Information" would create a new substantive criminal offense for disclosing classified information to individuals not authorized to review such information. Although we would defer to the Department of Justice regarding this proposal, we do note that the provision does not appear to require an intent on the part of the disclosing person to injure the United States or aid a foreign power. We believe that this title in its present form may have constitutional and other legal problems.

Finally, Section 405 of the proposed bill would amend the National Security Act of 1947 in 50 US Code 401 by adding a new Section 1001, entitled "Modifications of Certain Liabilities of Intelligence Community Personnel." This Section would make significant changes to the Federal Tort Claims Act in order to provide further protection from civil suits to Intelligence Community personnel. This would have the effect of dividing the FBI into two classes of Special Agents. Those working intelligence matters would as a result of this proposal have more protection from civil suits in certain instances than those working criminal matters. Therefore, we would object to the proposal as currently drafted.

Memorandum from W. M. Baker to J. H. Geer, dated 1/31/86
Re: Draft Fiscal Year 1987 Intelligence Authorization Bill

ADDENDUM: INTELLIGENCE DIVISION (INTD), DMS:glh, 2/7/86

The attached memorandum forwarded a copy of the "Draft Fiscal Year 1987 Intelligence Authorization Bill" to INTD for review. The version forwarded was from the CIA's Office of Legislative Affairs. Thereafter, SA [redacted] OCPA, forwarded to INTD the same bill as it currently exists after review by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB). Pursuant to SA [redacted] instructions, INTD has reviewed and commented below on the OMB version, as it is the most current version of the proposed bill.

INTD continues to support, with one exception, Title VI of the bill entitled "Enhanced FBI Counterintelligence Capabilities." Section VI improves the FBI's counterintelligence capabilities by: 1) making the provisions of the Right to Financial Privacy Act of 1978 relating to FBI access to financial records in FCI cases mandatory; 2) providing a legal mechanism for access to certain taxpayer information in FCI investigations; 3) requiring communications common carriers to disclose subscriber information and toll record information to the FBI pursuant to requests made by national security letters (NSLs); 4) authorizing the FBI to expend appropriated funds to host foreign officials having counterintelligence responsibilities when they are in the United States for consultation; 5) providing the FBI access to state and local criminal records.

INTD does have some specific comments regarding the language of the section of the bill providing the FBI access to telephone toll records. Proposed subparagraph (b) of Title 28, United States Code, Section 538, provides that the FBI may, at the request of other agencies within the Intelligence Community, obtain telephone toll record information when the information is "relevant to the intelligence responsibility of such agency."

The above subsection, if enacted, will become a burden on INTD, as we process potentially numerous requests from other Intelligence Community agencies. Additionally, the operative language, that these requests merely be "relevant to the intelligence responsibility of such agency" would appear to permit significant latitude to the requesting agency. This provision, in addition to being burdensome, may, in our view, jeopardize the FBI's obtaining the requested authority from the Congress. The Attorney General Guidelines for FBI Foreign Intelligence Collection and Foreign Counterintelligence Investigations (FCIG) authorize requests for telephone toll records only in certain investigations. The FCIG standards appear to be significantly more stringent than the above "relevancy" test for other requesting agencies.

INTD defers to OCPA on the best legislative strategy to pursue on this bill. However, we have serious reservations about processing toll record requests for other agencies within the Intelligence Community.

INTD's comments regarding other sections of the bill have been expressed before to SA [redacted] and, inasmuch as they relate to sections that are primarily the DOJ's responsibility, can be briefly restated. Section 1001, entitled "Modification of Certain Liabilities of Intelligence Community Personnel," makes significant changes to the Federal Tort Claims Act, to provide further protection from civil suits to Intelligence Community personnel. However, FBI SAs would be divided into two classes. Those working intelligence matters would, as a result of the bill, have more protection from civil suits in certain instances than those working criminal matters. Therefore, INTD concludes that Section 1001, although well intended, is poorly drafted and needs significant revision prior to enactment. b7C

Title IX of the bill, entitled "Unauthorized Disclosure of Classified Information," creates a new substantive criminal offense for disclosing classified information to individuals not authorized to review such information. We defer to DOJ regarding this proposal. We do note, however, that the provision does not appear to require an intent on the part of the disclosing person to injure the United States or aid a foreign power. Thus, on its face, it would appear to criminalize improper disclosure of classified information by an individual to a spouse or other family member. INTD believes that Title IX, in its present form, may have constitutional problems.

This confirms and provides a record of information previously provided by INTD Special Staff to SA [redacted] OCPA.
